Purpose

For NDIS providers who require verification, this document outlines the evidence that auditors must receive in order to assess conformity with the verification module of the NDIS Practice Standards.

Each individual who will be part of your registration must meet the requirements corresponding to their profession(s).

Background

Verification is for individual sole traders and partnerships delivering lower risk or less complex services. When registering through verification, NDIS providers supply documentation against the four outcomes within the verification module of the NDIS Practice Standards. The required documentation is outlined in these Verification Guidelines.

The documentation relates to their identity, professional qualifications, experience, ongoing professional development, criminal and character checks, insurances and completion of the NDIS mandatory worker orientation program. Evidence of systems and processes to manage work health and safety, incidents and complaints is also required, proportionate to the size of the organisation.

These documents are checked through a desktop audit undertaken by an approved quality auditor. Approved quality auditors are required to make sure that the evidence provided is proportionate to the risk and complexity of the supports and services delivered, and the size and scale of the organisation. What this means is that a smaller provider with fewer workers and participants is not expected to present the same evidence as a national provider with a large workforce and many participants. More information about proportionality is available on the NDIS Commission website.

Rationale

The NDIS Practice Standards create an important benchmark for providers to assess their performance, and to demonstrate how they provide high quality and safe supports and services to NDIS participants. To comply with the verification module of the NDIS Practice Standards, providers must show evidence of:

- Relevant qualifications, expertise and experience
- Incident management processes/policies
- Complaints management processes/policies
- Risk management processes/policies

These guidelines set out the requirements that each profession must meet during the verification process.

Generally speaking, providers who register for these registration groups either:

- 1) deliver relatively lower risk supports and services, and/or
- 2) are already subject to professional regulation as a requirement of doing business

This includes regulation through the Australian Health Practitioner Regulation Agency (AHPRA) and through the other professional bodies that provide regulatory oversight of the professions included within these guidelines.

This existing regulation includes setting of standards and the ongoing monitoring of the individual's competency to practice their profession, including through continuing professional development.

Because of the existing obligations of these professional bodies, and the less complex support types delivered under the registration groups in scope of verification, individual sole traders and partnerships have a streamlined audit process requiring a desktop review of the documentary evidence outlined in these guidelines.

As the NDIS market develops, the NDIS Commission will continue to monitor the effectiveness of these profession-specific regulatory frameworks to meet the NDIS Commission's requirements in relation to safe, quality services for NDIS participants.

How to use this document

Verification providers must meet three types of requirement:

1. General requirements: These apply to all verification providers. Some of these requirements may be met by the provider as a whole (for example, complaints policies) while others must be met by each individual (for example, proof of identity).
2. Worker screening requirements: You should ensure you understand which individuals are required to undergo worker screening.
3. Additional requirements by profession: This section sets out the additional requirements (and associated documentation) that individuals must demonstrate, based on their profession(s), and includes specific requirements that apply to each registration group.

In order to meet the requirements, you must provide evidence that each individual who will deliver supports has met the corresponding requirements for their profession(s) and registration group(s).

Where a requirement includes the words 'or equivalent', this means an institute of a similar status to that which is referred. Factors to be taken into consideration include the relevant industries' acknowledgement of the institute as a body which maintains the reputation and quality of the profession, as well as the experience and qualifications required for professionals in the industry to gain membership of the institute.

This document may be reviewed as required. Providers and auditors should check the NDIS Commission’s website regularly to ensure that they are complying with the current version of this document.
